(Specialising in Radio and Television)
- Programme code: BMHGATERT1

What is the Purpose of the Short Learning Access Programme?

Many adult and young-adult learners who have not achieved a National Senior Certificate (NSC) or equivalent qualification can benefit from higher education.

In keeping with the objectives of the NQF the Department of Higher Education & Training supports wider and more diverse access to higher education. At present, institutional admission policies must allow for alternative routes of entry that are equivalent to the NSC standard, including the assessment of an adult learner's capacity to benefit from a particular programme by recognition of prior learning (RPL) or other means. This SLP covers a range of social, economic and educational purposes, including access to higher education, skills development, continuing professional development, personal fulfilment and social development and citizenship.

What are the Programme Outcomes?

On completion of the SLP, candidates will have the necessary knowledge and practical skills required to:

- Gain admission to the Boston Media House Diploma in Radio and Television Production or the Boston Media House Diploma in Media Practices programme based on an average score of 60% across all SLP subjects.
- Use media specific science and technology.
- Understand the mutual influence between culture and media.

If you pass all your subjects with 50% or more you will receive the short-learning programme certification but you will only gain admission to the Diploma programme if you pass all your subjects with 50% or more AND secure an average pass of 60% calculated across all subjects of this Media Studies Gateway Short Learning Access Programme.

Should you complete the Media Studies Gateway Short Learning Access Programme with less than a 60% average pass you will be issued with an academic record of your achievement and a Certificate if you have passed all subjects of the programme (50% or more in each subject) but you will not be admitted to the Boston Media House Diploma in Radio and Television Production or the Diploma in Media Practices programme.
